developed, finely enough for the tables of a county or state pomological show.

A man by the name of Charles Yike hired a horse and buggy at the Eagle barn yesterday afternoon to drive to one of the parks. Arriving at his destination he proceeded to fill up on tangle-foot. The last the livery man heard from him was that he was in the south part of town with one wheel broken off the buggy and the turnout was otherwise damaged pretty badly.

J. C. Van Blarcom, cashier of the Bank of Commerce, of St. Louis, arrived in this airy Sinday afternoon. He was shown around by A. W. Oliver, M. W. Lavy and and John Whittaker, If any capitalist was
